Commissioners hopeful for funding of Krueger Lake Campground

BY BOB DEMAREE

With the project to develop a Krueger Lake Campground at the former Jefferson Proving Ground moving forward for Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative (READI) funding consideration, the county is now awaiting word from Indiana Economic Development Corporation.

Commissioner David Bramer said at Thursday's County Commissioners meeting that he is hopeful for the project after it was listed among the 30 projects selected by Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority for funding consideration.

"The campground project is going into the next phase, where they will evaluate it a little more. I was encouraged to start the process to look for a potential operator" for the campground, he said, with plans to make a request for qualifications to find out who might be interested. He noted that while the campground would generate funds for the county, the county will not be the operator.

Patty Jackson, deputy director of the Southeastern Indiana Regional Planning Commission, gave a report on the Owner Occupier Rehabilitation (OOR) grant program which Jefferson County was awarded a $250,000 grant from the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs through the Community Development Block Grant in December of 2022. She said those funds were used in conjunction with a $175,200 grant from the United States Department of Agriculture Housing Preservation Grant pro-

The funds assisted 19 low to moderate income homeowners in Jefferson County by providing minor rehabilitation works to the homes of eight elderly, four elderly and disabled, four disabled and two who were single parent heads of household. There were a total of 32 persons living in those households.

PLAN

The topic of whiskey barrel storage was a matter brought up by plan commission member David Ferguson, after MGP Ingredients, owner of Ross & Squibb Distillery (Seagrams), announced plans for whiskey barrel warehousing to be built in southern Jennings County, just a short distance from Dupont.

"There is a lot of concern in the Jennings County/Dupont area with the black mold that comes off these barrel warehouses and I guess that concern is pretty legit," said Ferguson. "I've talked with people who have lived around the barrel houses in Kentucky" who have told about their vehicles and homes turning black from the whiskey barrel operations.

Auxier explained that barrel houses "are known to have a problem with black fungus that grows and feeds off of the evaporating alcohol.'

Auxier said calls have been received for Jefferson County to respond to the whiskey barrel storage facility because it's so close to the county line. "With Dupont residents being concerned, they called our plan commission thinking best, and certainly on the it was under our jurisdic- decommission front, we tion and it wasn't," he said, even though it is a matter ing stronger restrictions that will be considered for addressing in the UDO.

He suggested a potential "situation where a company is going out of business, and we don't have provisions to keep that bond from being dropped ... Corporations if they know they are going out of business in a particular area, they'll move assets into a corporation that's not holding anything, regardless of how many fines or what you have, there is nothing to go after."

Orion Renewable Energy Group LLC, which has an application with the county's Board of Zoning Appeals for a solar project involving 3,324 acres in Saluda Township, was represented by Michael Cressner, the company's senior director of development, at the meeting.

"We're supportive for making the ordinance better and more responsive to concerns to the community," said Cressner. "That's one of the big reasons in terms of our projects that specifically we've gone above and beyond the existing Jefferson County ordinance to reflect our best practices, learning from our development history in terms of what is definitely encourage havbecause that is a back stop that should make a lot of With regard to solar people feel a lot more comfarms, Auxier said there fortable in terms of their

A committee will be established to work with TSWDG's Williams in discussing potential updates to the UDO. Plan Commission member Lisa Hammock suggested the entire plan commission be involved. Auxier was agreeable and noted "it's better to make that whole process open and transparent to the public and get input as we go along." It was also proposed that a solar expert participate along with a representative from an engineering firm. Auxier said meetings considering the potential updates will soon be scheduled. "If there are changes, there will be a public meeting to discuss the proposed changes," he said. County Attorney Patrick Magrath said the current application by Orion for solar operations in Saluda Township would not be held to any upcoming updates to solar standards in the UDO. "The application has already been submitted," said Magrath. "Generally it goes by the procedures established by the ordinance currently, so changes made to the ordinance after this would not apply to that application." Auxier asked whether any pending UDO updates would apply to new applications. Magrath said he would have to do more research but "I don't think the plan commission or the board of zoning appeals has the authority to put a stay on accepting applications because those boards are charged with enforcing those ordinances as they stand.'

Paris Style

Patrons mingle and gaze upon the women's clothing featured in the Paris Style exhibit at the Jefferson County Historical Society's History and Art Center. Friday's open house featuring items from the former Madison Main Street fashion shop was attended by more than 100 people. The exhibit will remain on display through Sept. 28.

FUNDING

She said it was an exceptional achievement that 18 of the 19 households met a targeted special needs population for the elderly, disabled, single parent, veteran or a combination of those. Jackson said typically the goal is for 50% of the grant funds to go to the target special needs, but in this instance it was 95%.

"We really are reaching the people that are most in need for this program," She said, noting 15 of the 19 households were considered very low income, which is less than 50% of the area's median income. Funds for the program were used for new roofs, water heaters, furnaces, air conditioners, addressing electric deficiencies and addressing accessibility issues. Commissioner Bobby Little thanked

Jackson for her efforts, noting at times it can be a daunting task "but it's rewarding when you see how much it helps some people who really need it."

Bramer commented that the rehabilitation projects were spread throughout the county which "is good to see."

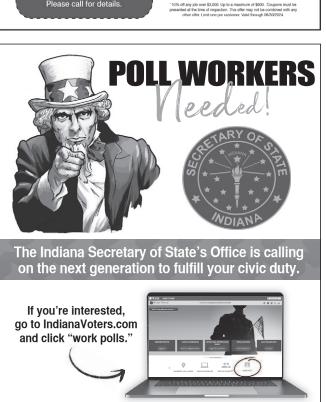

Jackson said the OOR was a pilot program "that we were able to participate in." Other recipients of $250,000 grants from OCRA were Lawrenceburg, North Vernon and Seymour. OCRA just released its new OOR application and Jackson is willing to assist in applying for that, which she said the city of Madison has also expressed interest in participating.

The commission also established preventative maintenance contracts for mechanical systems in new Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center, now in its first year of operation. Bramer noted that there are warranties on the mechanical system but maintenance is required to keep the warranties Approved with two contracts was HMC Service Company of Louisville for the air handling system (HVAC, chillers, filters, water heater, boilers) for $41,800 annually for two years and the plumbing services (mixing valves, grinder pumps, storage tanks) for $11,722 annually. Also approved was a contract with Nixon Power Services of Jeffersontown, Kentucky, for the generator at $10,443 annually and a contract with Adam Chemical to deal with treatment of the boiler water for $600 annually.

Daughter suspicious of mom's 'tax benefit' wedding

Dear Eric: My mom and her partner have been together for 20 years. This winter, my mom informed me that, upon the advice of their financial adviser, they'd be getting married this year.

I have zero issues or concerns about the man she's marrying, but knowing the reason is based on a financial "nudge" for tax bracket purposes, insurance and trusts, instead of a desire to be together for the rest of their lives, I'm having a very hard time getting psyched for the wedding, which will be a small family ceremony, then a reception party with more than 100 people invited.

It feels disingenuous to have a celebration of this size given the reasoning for the occasion. Any advice on how to find some joy in this event?

Where is the Love? Dear Love: Think of it as an anniversary

We've all happily gone to weddings of young people whose unions didn't end up lasting 20 years. Why punish your mom and her partner for proving the concept

Look, I'm a romantic from the Nora Ephron school, but the fact is marriage is a legal and financial institution that carries with it a plethora of benefits, from tax breaks to hospital visitation rights to protections around property and inheritance. You get those benefits if you have a quickie Vegas wedding to someone you met at the Caesars Palace buffet or if you wait 20 years Remind yourself that their standard deductions don't impact you, but the last two decades of their commitment has. Otherwise, you'll miss out on this one chance you have to celebrate the fact that they did something extraordinary and 100 them for a very long time.

Husband's sister invades social plans

THOMAS

Dear Eric: My sister-in-law's husband passed away several years ago. Over the years, my husband and I only saw them occasionally for holidays. A year after her husband passed away, she suddenly announced that she would be moving back to her hometown, where we reside. She purchased a home in a

55+ community 15 minutes from our home. As a result of her being now in very close proximity to us. we feel obligated to invite her on family vacations, dinners out and other family activities and outings. We expected she would establish new friendships and build a new life here, but we have become her primary source of companionship.

I would like to spend more time with my husband now and not have to always include her every time we make plans. It's becoming an issue in my marriage.

Additionally, her health is declining, and she may be thinking we'll also provide elder care as she ages.

I don't want to appear callous and uncaring, but I did not expect this dynamic at this stage of my life. How can we tactfully let her know how we feel? – Three's a Crowd obligation, you did become her de facto social director, so it's not unreasonable that she's been slow to fill out her own dance card. So, stop. Plan a vacation or night

Dear Crowd: Even though you felt it was an out and let her know, "We're going away, and we just want some time for us. Are there some events happening in your community that you think you'll enjoy?' Ask her directly about how she's acclimating. Moving into a new place, especially after the death of a spouse, can be a jarring adjustment. Don't be shy about talking through her efforts to make friends and establish her life. She may need the extra push.

Even more importantly, you and your husband should talk with her about her long-term care plans. Does she have a financial plan in place? Does she have long-term care insurance? What are the resources in the 55+ community that she can avail herself of? What is her financial situation? Has she thought about medical directives?

She should do some thinking about how she wants to spend the next decades — help won't just appear. Have the conversations now so that no one has assumptions or expectations and your sister-in-law is able to proactively make a plan and ask for help when needed.

County continues to explore sources to fund new animal shelter

BY BOB DEMAREE

An effort to develop a new Jefferson County Animal Shelter with funding from Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative (READI) was unsuccessful this round but County Commissioner David Bramer said Thursday the Commissioners' efforts to obtaining funding for that project will contin-

"That's so sad," Animal

Parker said at Thursday's Commissioners meeting

Bramer said the Commissioners should move forward with developing a design for a new shelter, so that potential grants and donors have "an idea of what you're going to do.'

"We'll keep moving that forward," he said, noting the county's grant writer, Brian Amick, is already working on a request for proposals to create a design for a new animal shelter. "Whether we got money from READI or not, we need to do that" because by having the design "you got something to show people."

"We won't stop. We will keep going," he added.

Meanwhile, Parker said there continues to be problems with the current build-Shelter Director Tricia ing located at 2727 Hannah The animal shelter finished 72nd out of 74 proposed projects in scoring by the Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority based on its economic impact on the five county region that includes Clark, Floyd, Jefferson, Scott and Washington counties.

Drive. "In the dog kennel the ceiling to kill the mold area, we have mold starting to grow in the ceiling" which she said isn't healthy for the dogs. "I'm going to have to deal with that before much longer or it's going to start causing dogs to get sick."

She's had the ceiling tested for safety, and was told "as long as I keep bleaching it and watching the growth," it's not yet an issue. "But once mold starts, it's hard to get it to go away. I am fearing because we're bleaching that it's going make the ceiling come on down" said Parker, noting the ceiling is drywall.

The Commissioners suggested that Parker get cost quotes for a new ceiling for the dog kennel, perhaps in a metal material that would not be as prone to the mold problem.

In other matters related to the animal shelter, Parker received approval for a temporary test run to increase the cost for kittens and puppies — those that are from birth to five months old by $25, which would make adoption $125 for a kitten and $225 for a puppy.

"You can try it and see how it goes" for a couple of months said Commissioner Bobby Little, adding that if the increase does not impact adoption numbers negatively the policy could continue, but if it doesn't "then you have to regroup."

Parker said kittens and puppies are more "highly sought after," and increasing the cost for them is already being done by other area animal shelters. She also said kittens and puppies are more costly for the animal shelter to keep because they require four rounds of vaccinations they need to be dewormed.

"That would offset the costs of those young ones that are more adoptable, she said, noting it actually costs the shelter $175 per cat and $320 per female dog. While the shelter currently loses $120 on each female dog, she said it would be difficult to get them adopted if the shelter actually adopted them based on costs. She said male dogs cost the shelter approximately $225.

Parker said animal shelters at Versailles and Aurora increased their fees for kittens and puppies by $50, and that has resulted in more adult cats and adult dogs being adopted. "People come in and they don't want to pay extra for the kitten, so they're taking the adults instead of two rounds and that usually get left behind at the shelter," she noted.

Ribberfest a fun event 'for the community, by the community'

BY BOB DEMAREE

The 2024 Madison Ribberfest BBQ & Blues Festival will bring the sweet sounds of live music and the smokey aroma of barbecue all packaged in a good time for all on Madison's riverfront this Friday and Saturday for the 22nd annual event.

"We're just a fun festival" that brings people together with food and music, said Erin Kindle, now in her fourth year as Ribberfest coordinator.

While the event is definitely a tourist attraction and brings hundreds of visitors to Madison, Kindle emphasized that Ribberfest is more importantly an event that's community driven, volunteer staffed and locally celebrated.

by the community. We want to make sure everybody is having a good time. We want to make sure our vendors are making money and enjoy being there. We want our patrons to enjoy being there. We want our volunteers to enjoy being there," said Kindle. "It's a really cool event, and it's come a long way."

And in an effort to make Ribberfest more available to the communidecreased compared to last year in an garden. effort to make it more affordable.

at the Visitor Center, 601 West First Street — then increase to $50 on Friday and Saturday at the gate, but that's still $10 less than last year. Also, children 12 and under are free with a paid adult.

Kindle noted the decision to lower the cost came in response to feedback from the community. "We want to work with our community the best we can" to make the event affordable for families and all who want to enjoy the event. At the same time, like everything else Ribberfest is dealing with rising costs and she noted it's a fine line keeping wristband costs down while having enough funds to meet expenses to stage the event.

Music kicks off Friday night toric Brown Gym on Broadway. at 6 p.m. with Brandon Santini, fol-

The Kids-Q competition, a longtime Ribberfest tradition, will be from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday at Lamplighter Park. The competition is for children ages 8-15 with two divisions — ages 8-11 and ages 12-15. Each team will be given two pounds of ground mild sausage and allowed two hours to work their magic. "We provide the meat. We provide the grills," said Kindle, adding contestants can bring their own grill if they want, but otherwise it's a headto-head competition. First place pays a $200 cash scholarship with second place paying a $100 cash scholarship.

There are also several other competitions during the two-day festival with some involving the entire community and another featuring a select few with a big appetite.

The Pigmania contest involves decorating and displaying the festival's concrete pigs with people's choice and judge's choice winners announced at 7:15 p.m. Saturday with proceeds going towards scholarships for Jefferson County high school and/or college students with the recipients being evaluated on volunteerism in the community. Last year, more than $2,000 in scholarships were given.

The Good to the Bone Rib Eating contest will be at 3 p.m. Saturday with competitors going tooth to tooth to see who can eat the most lip smacking ribs within the alloted time.

This year's Ribberfest will also feature a kids area with two bounce houses ($10 wristband per child required). "It's to encourage families to bring their kids and come and have a good time," said Kindle.

She said Ribberfest is an event that depends heavily on its volunteers, who take their roles serious and strive to make it a fun and enjoyable event. "We've been very, very fortunate over the years to have people that are so passionate about volunteerism and doing their part," said Kindle.

13th Carroll County Bands and BBQ gearing up for next month

BY TAYLOR WILLIAMS

Carroll County's 13th Bands and BBQ event is scheduled for Friday and Saturday. Sept. 13-14, at Carrollton's Point Park.

Sponsored by Carrollton/Carroll County Tourism, the two-day event, is free and open to the public, and will host not only musicians on stage but a Kansas City Barbeque Society-sanctioned barbecue cook-off for prize money and trophies.

There will be two separate divisions for the competition — professional teams and amateur backyard teams - and registration is still open to both competitions. Entry fee for pro teams is $250, with optional electricity another $30 while the fee for backyard teams is $50.

Awards will be announced at 4:30 p.m. on Saturday of the event with categories including: chicken, ribs, pork, brisket, best sauce, and an anything but category. Misty Wheeler, organizer of the competition, said the pro and backyard teams will be judged separately for the chicken, ribs, pork, and brisket category. For the best sauce and anything but category, they will be judged together.

The pro competition pays out $9,000 divided among the grand champion, reserve champion, and top ten finishers in each of the four categories. In the backyard competition, all of the entry money, plus $500 from tourism, will be paid out to the top three places. There will one winner each in the best sauce and anything but categoeach winner.

"It's always exciting to see which team is going to win," Wheeler said.

She added that while the event always draws a few first year teams, there will be several familiar teams returning to the competition. One of the new teams registered for this year is Jack's Old South out of Georgia, created by celebri-ries, with a $100 prize to ty pit master and barbecue champion Myron Mixon. Whether Mixon will attend is not yet known.

The backdrop to the cook-off is the concert from 7-11 p.m. Friday ans noon to 10:30 p.m. Saturday with bands rotating every two hours with a mixture of styles and the lineup to be named later.

Lady Cubs strong in dual meet win over Jennings

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison had four players break 50 in an impressive 177-207 win over Jennings County in St. Annes Golf Course in North Vernon on Wednesday.

Emmi Dowell led the Cubs with a 40 but was followed closely by Aleigh Wilson's 44, Eliza Burnett, with a 45, and Izzie Perry, with a

"The ladies announced their presence tonight. It pains me to say it, but I don't think I've ever had four under 50 strokes at the same time," Madison coach Jake Shockley said. "I'm not sure what it was, but (Assistant Coach Amanda Detmer Leary) and I think the difficulty of the first couple of days really helped us this evening. We went from grinding out long,

In non-scoring rounds for Madison, Claire Miller had a 58, Alexa Davis shot a 60, Tera Scharlau had a 65 and Savannah Petro had a 70.

"Aleigh, Eliza, and Izzie all shot personal bests tonight. Aleigh and Eliza weren't surprises, though. They've been tracking since the preseason," Shockley said. "Really, if I'm being honest Izzie isn't a surprise either if you could see her practices. Her first two tournaments were rough and we were starting to game plan how to get her where her potential is. She did really well tonight."

On Saturday, Madison placed 83 while Wilson and Burnett each

Batesville won the event with a 326, New Albany was second with a 340, Floyd Central Green was third with a 373 and Madison was fourth with a 385.

"Overall, it's still a solid start. We're still about 40 strokes ahead of where we were this time last year. At some point, we're going to hit a point where continuing at that pace isn't realistic, but we have a lot of details to shore up," Shockley said. "We continue to leave a lot of shots around the green, and we haven't seen Emmi's A-game yet. As a team, the amount of three-putts has to continue to improve."

Dowell was sixth overall with an er a 109.

'Claire (Miller) was a pleasant surprise today. She didn't have a lot of opportunities in junior high golf to really get better, but she showed out today," Shockley said. "She's probably hit more balls than anybody so far this season, and it shows. I don't want to take away from the solid performance of the collective, though. All of the ladies have been grinding and extremely coachable this season so far."

The Madison Consol-Fishing Team competed in tournament three of the 2024-2025 season on Saturday at Lake Monroe in Bloomington. A big shakeand had to sit on the sidelines.

US men's basketball win 5th consecutive gold

BY TIM REYNOLDS

PARIS — The first practice for the U.S. men's Olympic basketball team after arriving in Paris was one of those workouts that those who were there, watching behind closed doors, will talk about for a long time.

Players were split up evenly. Go play, they were told. What happened next set the tone for the rest of the team's time at the Paris Games.

"We warmed up and then it became competitive," U.S. assistant coach Erik Spoelstra said. "And that's when you realized, one, that this team really cares and that it felt the responsibility to play and compete at the highest level. And then secondly, the level of talent on that floor ... we knew it could exceed all expectations.'

A couple weeks later, they won gold. The mission was completed Saturday night when the U.S. won gold for the fifth consecutive Games, holding off France — in Paris, no less — 98-87. Stephen Curry scored 24 points, all on 3-pointers, while Kevin Durant won his fourth Olympic gold and LeBron James won his third gold and fourth medal overall.

And then the party started. Before long, it'll be time to start thinking about how to do it again in 2028 when the Olympics return to Los Angeles. Grant Hill will be back as managing director for the men's national team, and he's already excited about what is

"I've done a lot of things in my life," Hill said. "And this is a thing that certainly consumes you, but it is incredibly rewarding."

Especially when the team wins.

There will be changes between now and 2028. James will be 43 and likely retired by then (though with James, never say never). It might seem iffy for Curry and Durant to still be playing in four years, but again, who knows. Some players like Anthony Davis and Bam Adebayo already have said they want in; others like Anthony Edwards, Devin Booker, Jayson Tatum and Tyrese Haliburton seem to be locks if they want to continue.

No decisions are set, and that won't change for a while. Hill is going to take a well-earned break. The next major international tournament is the World Cup at Qatar in 2027. It's safe to say that it'll be sometime in 2025 when he even starts getting serious about putting together a group for that.

'Over four years, a lot can and will happen," Hill said. "Now, getting away from it a little bit, just letting things play out and see how guys continue to develop and see what kind of season guys have over the next year or so. And then, at some point, you start that process all over again."

When he took over, Hill said he wanted a pipeline for both players and coaches. People leave the program, others move up. Steve Kerr made clear when he agreed to replace Gregg Popovich as U.S. coach, it would be for the 2023 World Cup and these Paris Olympics. It would seem likely that the next national team coach will be either Spoelstra or Tyronn Lue, given how both were assistants under Kerr the last two summers.

And already, the player candidate pool for the 2027 World Cup in Qatar and the 2028 Los Angeles Olympics has a slew of obvious candidates. Adebayo has said he wants to play and Davis — admittedly, with a new gold medal around his neck possibly swaying his mood — said Saturday night that he thinks he'll play in 2028. Edwards, Haliburton, Tatum and Booker (who was incredible in these Olympics) will all be 31 or less when the Los Angeles Games roll around. Edwards will turn only 27 that sum-

Add some of the players from the World Cup team — Paolo Banchero, Jalen Brunson, Mikal Bridges and Josh Hart would all figure to be among the candidates from that list and there's already a slew of logical options. There will be more, many

We love that, to have some of these young guys in the pipeline now and on the team so that they can be part of the next group," Kerr said. "But really, we didn't think of that when putting the team together. We just put the best group possible to win now and we'll worry about 2028 in four years."

Wilson and US women hold off France to win 8th straight gold

BY DOUG FEINBERG AP BASKETBALL WRITER

PARIS — The U.S. women's basketball team had never been challenged during its 32-year run in the Olympics like the Americans were Sunday by France.

They met the moment and made history, winning an eighth consecutive Olympic gold medal.

It was the closest — and maybe sweetest win - of any during the streak.

"Maybe they won't say it's just easy and we walk in and just win gold," said U.S. center Brittney Griner. who broke down in tears when she was presented her third gold medal. "Maybe they'll stop saying that, because, like I said, we see everybody's best shot. And we saw the shot that France gave us."

A'ja Wilson scored 21 points and the U.S. survived a last-second shot by former UConn standout Gabby Williams that was just inside the 3-point line to hold off France for a 67-66 win and an eighth consecutive gold.

"Eight straight golds is insane honestly," said Breanna Stewart. "Each one is so different, and so, so special and so, so hard."

No team had been able to push the Americans during their impressive streak of 61 consecutive wins. Only two of those victories had been by single digits before the game against France.

"It's amazing. It truly is a dynasty that we have built up the court and passed here at USAB has been it to Williams, who caught resilience that my team showed. We could have fumbled it many times, but we pulled through. To say I am a two-time gold medalist, I am so blessed."

The eight straight golds broke a tie with the American men's program that won seven in a row from 1936-68. The women's victory came less than 24 hours after the U.S. men's team also beat France in the basketball title game.

What a tremendous basketball game. The 12,000-plus that were here were just treated to an unbelievable environment and the level of athleticism and competitiveness that these players had," U.S. coach Cheryl Reeve said. "What a better way to finish the Paris Olympics than to see that?

"We feel really fortunate, happy, a lot of words. There's a lot of trust that has to happen, so I'm just thrilled that we're able to get a win."

The victory gave Diana Taurasi a sixth consecutive gold medal, making her the most decorated basketball player in Olympic history, breaking a tie with longtime teammate Sue Bird, who won five.

Taurasi, who didn't play in the gold medal game, has been humble about the potential record, saying she cares more about the team winning then her individual success.

It's been a trying Olympics for her as she didn't start any of the knockout phase games, the first time she wasn't in the opening lineup since the 2004 Olympics.

Australia edged Belgium 85-81 in the bronze medal game earlier Sunday.

Reds avoid sweep with 4-3 win to snap Brewers' 5-game win streak

MILWAUKEE - Santiago Espinal had two RBIs and scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning as the Cincinnati Reds beat Milwaukee 4-3 on Sunday to snap the NL Central-leading Brewers' fivegame winning streak.

The Reds avoided a sweep and beat the Brewers for just the 12th time in their last 47 meetings. The Brewers won two of three from the Reds this weekend for their ninth straight series victory against

The Reds broke a 3-all tie against Joe Ross (2-6) in the seventh inning. After Espinal hit a leadoff single and advanced to second when Jonathan India grounded out, Ross walked Elly De La Cruz intentionally and Tyler Stephenson unintentionally to load the bases. Espinal scored on Spencer Steer's sacrifice fly to the left-field warning track.

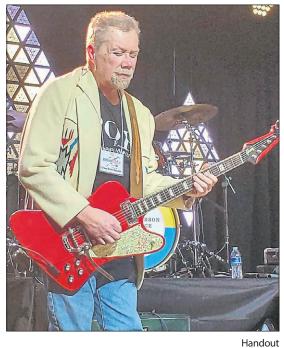

The Brewers hit into inning-ending double plays in the seventh and eighth before Alexis Díaz retired the side in order in the ninth for his 23rd save in 25 opportunities.

REDS 10, MARLINS 4

TJ Friedl homered and drove in three, Elly De La Cruz had three hits and stole his major league-leading 59th base, and Jeimer Candelario hit a two-run single during a seven-run 10th inning as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Miami Marlins 10-4 on Thursday night.

Tyler Stephenson walked with the bases loaded to snap a 3-3 tie in the 10th, then Friedl was hit on the right kneecap by a pitch from Marlins reliever Emmanuel Ramirez (0-1), who faced six batters without recording an out. Spencer Steer's single made it 6-3 before Candelario's hit ended Ramirez's outing.

Madison's other two high school teams didn't weigh a fish despite the brother team of Mitchell and Carson Cammack landing more than 15 fish on the day, but none longer than 12 inches. A lost opportunity for Mitchell Cammack mid-morning was demoralizing as a definite keeper was hooked under a dock but broke off during the fight as the pesky bass dove under the boat.

After three tournaments, the Madison duo of Brayden Perry and Clayton Ross sit 14th in the points standings with 231 points and 9.47 total pounds while Liter and Bray are 18th with 218 points and 9.46 total pounds. Craig and Johnson are 23rd, Comer and Overpeck are 27th, Mitchell and Carson Cammack are 28th, Jackson Dean and Gabe Wall-Polly are 45th and Cooper Chandler and Owain Kelsey are 51st.

In the Junior Division, Madison had no teams weigh in fish and with the second-place points team Gavin Brittain and Floyd Davis IV on the sideline, they fell to ninth place in the Junior standings, a drop of 99 points. Madison did have two teams competing in the Junior Division however: Kohen Smith and Nate Adams with boat captain Junior Morris and Brantley Conover and Kaden Ehlers with boat captain Robert Cooper not coming to the scales.

Ehlers and Conover currently sit eighth in the junior standings while Smith and Adams are 12th.
